LWC Offers Scholarships for Google Career Certificates

Louisianians looking to pursue a career in technology can now get no-cost, online training with no prior experience required. The Louisiana Workforce Commission is offering hundreds of scholarships that provide access to the Google Career Certificates.

"We know careers of the future are in technology and Louisiana needs to be at the forefront," said LWC Secretary Ava Cates. "As broadband infrastructure expands across our state, having these certificates available through online learning platforms makes them more accessible to all Louisianians who want to gain valuable job-ready skills that they'll take with them through their career."

The Grow with Google scholarships are funded through a partnership between the National Association of State Workforce Agencies (NASWA) and Google, who together are making 30,000 program scholarships available throughout the country. Google offers career certificates in high-growth fields like project management, user experience (UX) design, data analytics, IT support, and digital marketing and e-commerce.

Classes are self-paced and offered through the online learning platform, Coursera. The certificates require under 10 hours of flexible study per week and take 3-6 months to complete on average. They utilize hands-on projects and direct employer connections to help learners fully understand the subject matter.

Cleco completed its pledged giving of $100,000 to support LSUA's Accountants for the Future initiative. LSUA Chancellor Dr. Paul Coreil and Cleco President and CEO Bill Fontenot celebrated with a ceremonial "big" check presentation.

Like many local business leaders, Fontenot supports the idea that we can educate and employ qualified accountants right here in central Louisiana. Accounting is essential to the growth and sustainability of nearly every industry. As such, LSUA has devoted significant energy to revitalizing its pathway into this crucial career.

"Cleco's significant commitment to LSUA's Accountants for the Future initiative will result in more qualified accountants entering the workforce," said LSUA Chancellor Coreil. "By adding faculty and enhancing curriculum, the LSUA College of Business is committed to preparing and graduating job ready accounting students that can live and enjoy a successful career right here in central Louisiana."

"Cleco is honored to be a part of the Accountants for the Future project to grow the accounting department at LSUA," said Bill Fontenot, president and CEO of Cleco Corporate Holdings. "This donation is an investment in the communities where we live, work, and serve, and Cleco is committed to helping leading institutions like LSUA prepare their students to meet current and future workforce needs."

Entergy Providing $1 Million to Help Jumpstart LCTCS Implementation of MJ Foster Promise Program

 Entergy Louisiana is committed to helping develop the workforce of the future by supporting education initiatives that tap into the rich diversity of the communities it serves.

The company announced today that it will provide $1 million over three years to the Louisiana Community and Technical College System (LCTCS) Foundation to help jumpstart the MJ Foster Promise Program, a financial aid program funded by the State of Louisiana that will help qualifying residents attend two-year colleges or approved proprietary schools and receive training for high-demand jobs in growing sectors.

Entergy Louisiana President and CEO Phillip May was joined during the announcement by Gov. John Bel Edwards, Louisiana Senate President Page Cortez, Louisiana House Speaker Clay Schexnayder, Louisiana Commissioner of Higher Education Kim Hunter-Reed, LCTCS President Monty Sullivan, and LCTCS Director of Advancement Tarie Roberson. The group discussed how the MJ Foster Promise Program was developed, supporting legislation and what the program solves.

According to LCTCS, tens of thousands more adults will need to earn credentials beyond high school to fill jobs in Louisiana over the next decade. The MJ Foster Promise Program, a new $10.5 million state fund, was created to address that need by providing financial assistance to low-income residents who are 21 years or older and seek credentials required for employment in workforce areas like construction, healthcare, information technology, manufacturing and transportation and logistics.

The Rapides Foundation Reconnecting Cenla Program Grant

The Rapides Foundation has released the Reconnecting Cenla Program Grant, a new funding opportunity which seeks to fund eligible organizations to create or expand programs and partnerships for reconnecting disconnected youth and young adults to education and employment opportunities.

Disconnected youth, also referred to as opportunity youth, are young adults ages 16 to 24 who are neither in school nor working. In 2019, The Rapides Foundation expanded the scope of its programs to address disconnected youth in Central Louisiana.

The Reconnecting Cenla Program Grant provides grant awards up to $300,000, with a grant term of up to 36 months. The goal of the funding opportunity is to support a mix of urban and rural community anchor organizations throughout the Foundation's nine-parish service area to develop local coordinated systems which will identify and recruit disconnected youth and address specific barriers they face when reengaging to education and/or employment services.

An informational webinar will be held on Thursday, June 16, for interested applicants to learn about the new grant. Registration is required for the webinar. Click here to register.

Full details about the funding opportunity, including the Request for Proposals, eligibility criteria, proposal submission deadlines and online application link, can be found by clicking here.

There, he became part of a team who saw his potential and believed he could grow and advance.

At RoyOMartin, growing their people is not just a slogan. They believe in the limitless potential of individuals. Watch Brandon tell his unique story of how RoyOMartin helped him achieve his goal of earning his high school equivalency diploma here.

Dr. Randall Dupont, Dean of the LSUA College of Business, explained Cenla Accountants for the Future is a public-private initiative by seven central Louisiana firms to place more accounting graduates in the workforce. Members of the group include Cleco, RoyOMartin, Crest Industries, Virtual Partner Advantage, Red River Bank, Payne Moore Herrington, and Central Management. Other partnerships are in progress. The initiative was spearheaded by Roy O. Martin, III in 2020, who brought together other companies to address the local shortage of professional accountants and auditors. Members of the group wanted to equip more LSUA graduates with the knowledge and competencies to successfully complete the CPA exam and enter into public accounting, industry, governmental, or non-profit employment in Central Louisiana and beyond.
