Secretary Schowen announces two new appointments at the Louisiana Workforce Commission

Secretary Schowen announced new appointments to serve on the Executive Leadership team.

Osmar Padilla will lead the Office of Workforce Development as the Assistant Secretary. Before joining the Louisiana Workforce Commission, Padilla led regional workforce initiatives as the Director of Workforce Development at Greater New Orleans, Inc. In this role, he fostered partnerships with employers, government, education, and community-based organizations to develop collaborative, industry-driven programs promoting economic mobility for Southeast Louisiana residents.

"I am humbled and honored to serve as Assistant Secretary at the LWC. I look forward to supporting our dedicated team at the LWC as we continue our mission to strengthen Louisiana's workforce and economy," said Assistant Secretary Osmar Padilla. "With a steadfast commitment to removing barriers and preparing Louisiana for today's and tomorrow's jobs, I am eager to advance workforce development initiatives that help citizens in every corner of our state find well-paying jobs and ensure employers have the talent they need. Under Secretary Schowen's leadership, the LWC is well-positioned to realize this goal, build prosperity, and foster economic growth."

LSUA Celebrates Remarkable Spring 2024 Enrollment Surge, Exceeding 5,400 Students

Louisiana State University of Alexandria (LSUA) continues its rise as the fastest-growing public university in Louisiana, with Spring 2024 enrollment reaching an all-time high of 5,405 students. This momentous achievement represents a 35.5% increase over the last year, solidifying LSUA's position as a university of choice.

LSUA surpassed its goal of 5,000 students in the fall of 2023, two years ahead of schedule, with a staggering 24% enrollment increase over the previous year. Spring 2024's enrollment growth of an additional 5.9% since this fall semester marks a significant milestone for LSUA, as it is the first time spring enrollment has exceeded fall figures since the university became a 4-year institution two decades ago. LSUA's ability to buck the national trend of declining enrollment demonstrates its resilience, adaptability, and unwavering commitment to student success and excellence.

Deron Thaxton, LSUA's Executive Vice Chancellor, said: "With our latest enrollment figures showing an unprecedented increase from last spring, it's clear that LSUA is not just expanding, we're evolving. We are not the LSUA from 20 years ago or even five! We are no longer just a regional campus; LSUA is the university of choice in Louisiana and beyond. Our growth is a robust affirmation of our commitment to accessible, top-tier education."
